Wee Members of the Zoo Colony Viewed by Hundreds of Admiring Visitors.

Three little brown bears-real live ones, about the size of those of the cloth and sawdust variety that sell for about a dollar—held their first Sunday afternoon reception at the Zoological Park yesterday. The little fellows are barely three months old, and up until a few days ago were too young and shy to come from the artificial cave which has been their home.

Scientist Says Antiseptics May Become Health Food for Microbes. orrespondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 8 .- Care must b aken in the use of antiseptics, lest they prove to be health food for microbes. In any case, antiseptics cannot produce an absolutely sterile wound.

These statements were made before the Royal Socity of Medicine by Sir Almthe Royal Socity of Medicine by Sir Aim-roth Wright in an address on the septic infection of wounds. He did not deny the great value of antiseptics, pointing to the good results of inoculation against typhold and lockjaw, but he claimed that inoculation was rather a preventive than a cure. Some day he thought that sort of treatment would be applied in the case of wounds.

Prof. Morse was a graduate of Harvard. He was the author of several menographs and for several years had been a regular contributor to standard encyclopedias and year books.

Sort of treatment would be applied in the case of wounds. The ordinary man, said Sir Almroth, thinks when he uses antiseptics he is killing microbes. Yet experiments have been made showing the addition of antiseptics to bacterial cultures in certain proportions causes bacteria to multiply. Thus the determination of the strength of the antiseptics is an important matter.
